

HIGHWAYS DEPARTMENT AT WORK—Trucks of the State Highways Department, Monroe County branch, plow away heavy drifts as traffic goes by on Route 611, north of Stroudsburg. Crews worked around the clock for nearly three days, keeping main roads open to motorists.

NOT GOING ANYWHERE—This motorist, who had planned to journey a bit, suddenly changed his mind after encountering difficulty. The 18-inch snowfall caused many motorists to do likewise until travel conditions became better.

County Shovels Out From Under 18-inch Snowfall

MONROE Countians, with tremendous assistance from above freezing temperatures, worked their way from under an 18-inch snow blizzard yesterday. The task continues today, but the weather isn't expected to be as pleasant nor as warm as Sunday's.

Beautiful weather, clear, sunny and temperatures hovering around the high 30's supplied an inestimable amount of help in removing some of the snowfall. But the day was short. People throughout the county took advantage of the "summer-like" conditions to dig themselves free of the snow. This was Operation Snow Removal No. III.

The pleasant weather took some of the sting out of the blizzard that began around 5:15 p.m. Friday and continued to early Saturday night.

As it ordered for the occasion, the warm weather came just in the nick of time. This was the first time in a 17-day stretch in which the temperatures were above freezing. Most of the time, in that period the mercury hit the sub-zero mark.

The weatherman said that the warm air "just moved through with the storm."

Sleet, which accompanied the snowstorm, didn't last too long. It was noticeable Saturday afternoon and early evening but ended after a short spell.

Today is expected to be generally fair, but probably cold. Cold could mean lower than yesterday's mark and possibly in the 20's.

Bill Hagerty, official U.S. Weather observer in Stroudsburg reported 18 inches of snow fell. The mark was just two inches shy of the Jan. 20 storm when 20 inches fell.

However, the amounts of snowfall varied around the county. Unofficially, reports of 18 to 22 inches were received.

The new fall piled high on top of the remains of a Jan. 25 storm and those of Dec. 11 and 21, 1960.

Hagerty reported a total accumulation to date of 78.1 inches. The accumulation for January was 34.5.

Winter "began" during a pre-season storm on Dec. 11 and dropped 11 inches of snow. A second storm struck on Dec. 21.

The weatherman also stated that the figures are not close to a record snowfall. It was observed that in 1958, February (with 41 inches) and March (with 46) delivered 88 inches to the area.

Returning To Normalcy
Public transportation was returning to normalcy, but some delays and inconveniences were still noticeable.

Major road and some of the secondary routes in the county were passable. The high temperatures yesterday aided in melting snow on most of the streets busily travelled. Others, where traffic was light, were still coated with the snow.

A spokesman at the office of the State Department of Highways in Stroudsburg reported "at least 75 per cent of the roads open."

The biggest problem for the department was drifting which closed the roads after they were opened. He reported that some outlying roads of the county in the West End and eastern Poconos were closed. Some had one-way traffic, others were being worked on.

State Highway Department trucks and personnel worked around the clock Friday, Saturday and yesterday. Some of the men checked out at about 5 p.m. last night.

The department had 103 men, 38 trucks, eight graders, seven loaders, one shovel and one pickup in action plowing and cinderling most of the weekend.

Rail traffic was returning to normal after running some three hours late during the height of the storm. Yesterday, a spokesman at the Erie-Lackawanna train Depot, East Stroudsburg, reported that the traffic had hit normal.

One exception was noted. This was No. 6 train which left at 5:44 p.m. yesterday to Cresco-Pocono Summit. About 400 passengers at the depot delayed the train for about an hour. Most of them were young skiers. Also last night, the No. 5 out of Hoboken was reported "right on time."

The same picture held true for the bus schedules. After great delays, and even cancellations, on Friday, the bus traffic was back to normal as of Sunday morning.

The Stroudsburg escaped the paralyzing effect that hit outlying areas. The storm paralyzed most of the Easton-Bethlehem-Allentown area.

Huge drifts some 10 to 15 feet high have closed many of the secondary roads in the Bangor territory.

No school will be held today in Bangor schools as a result of the closed roads, an official of the school reported yesterday.

One-way traffic prevailed on most of the town's streets while others were not even open. The business district, where traffic is usually heavy, is cleared of any snow.

It was also reported that about 80 per cent of the streets allow one-way traffic. Fifty per cent of the secondary roads were closed.

In Pen Argyl, chief Burgess William Lutz declared a state of emergency Saturday morning.

Lutz urged residents to use the telephone for emergency calls only. He asked residents not to tie up telephone lines with non-emergency calls.

About 250 homes in the north end of the borough were without electrical power when a power line broke on Saturday. Crews from the Metropolitan-Edison Co. were at the scene working to restore the service shortly after the break occurred about 9:30 a.m.

Russian Hints Sputnik Unmanned

Satellite Reported After Data

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet scientist hinted Sunday night that the seven-ton Russian Sputnik hurled into orbit Saturday is an unmanned satellite. He said it was on a data gathering mission.

Prof. Yevgeny Leonovich Klinov said the new satellite was designed "to study the earth as a planet and to make a study of its nearest environment, including that of meteoric dangers," and was in a different category than earlier Soviet space ships sent up with dogs and other animals.

Moscow Radio identified Klinov as president of the International Committee for Meteoric Studies of the World Geophysical Association.

At the same time other Soviet scientists indicated the new Sputnik was large enough to accommodate one and perhaps two men. And the Soviet press hailed the launching as a significant step toward manned space flight. But there was an unusual silence about its progress.

None of the papers gave any technical details beyond those announced by the Tass news agency and the Moscow radio Saturday. (Prof. Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank tracking station in Britain, said in London Sunday night he was inclined to think something went wrong after the Sputnik's launching.

In Washington, there were no comment or reports on the new Sputnik from the White House, the Pentagon or the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. A NASA spokesman said "all we know is what we read on the news wires."

Transport engineer V. Zvonkov said in an article in the Communist youth newspaper Komsomol Pravda that the lifting of this biggest man-made earth satellite brings manned space flights even closer.

Zvonkov failed to say when this might come about. Other Soviet scientists have in the past said much research remains to be done.

The labor newspaper Trud said the launching proves the thrust of Soviet rockets has improved considerably because this Sputnik is nearly two tons heavier than the largest previously fired aloft. He referred to two sent up by the U.S.S.R. last August and December.

A scientific writer of the Tass news agency, touching on the same theme, said, "The increase in thrust must be well ahead of the increase in weight."

Prof. V. Fedynsky, a Soviet physicist, expressed hope that instruments of the new Sputnik—reported shot into an orbit that carried it 203.1 miles from the earth at its highest point and 138.5 miles at its lowest—will yield new data on top layers of the earth's atmosphere.

It is supposed to circle the earth every 89.8 minutes.

Avalanches

BARDONECCHIA, Italy (AP)—Two Alpine avalanches smashed a mountain hamlet and crushed a laborers' barracks Sunday along the French-Italian frontier.

Four are known dead. Four are missing and feared killed. Five are injured, three of them seriously.

Young Couple, Four Children Are Left Homeless By Fire

A YOUNG couple and their four children were left homeless Saturday night as fire completely destroyed their home in Poplar Valley.

The blaze, which was caused by an overheated chimney, began about 9:30 p.m.

Homeless are Mr. and Mrs. Michael Uliana and their four young children ranging in age from 1 to 12 years. The home was situated on Poplar Valley Road about four miles southwest of Stroudsburg and about a mile west of Blue Mountain Camp, a resort camp for children near Poplar Valley.

No Injuries

There were no injuries. Loss to the home was estimated at $14,000 by Stroud Township Volunteer Fire Company Chief Lester Rice.

The fire company arrived at the scene shortly after the alarm was sent in. But the frame house was about three-quarters destroyed, Rice reported.

"The upstairs had already fallen in," Rice said, when the company arrived at the fire. Rice gave these details of the incident:

Mrs. June Uliana, 25, was preparing her youngest son, Anthony, 1½ years, for bed. The three other children, Allen, 12; Todd, 7; and Jacqueline, 4, were asleep upstairs.

Mrs. Uliana ascended the stairs and spotted flames near the chimney as she reached the second floor. She ran to her husband Michael who in turn ran outside and saw flames shooting from between the house and chimney.

Lines Tied Up

Michael, who is about 27, ran to his neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carson. Carson is a captain for the Southern Stroud Volunteer fire company. Carson put in a call to the fire house, but the lines were tied up. He next called the main headquarters in Stroud Township to report the fire.

While he was preparing to go to the burning building, his wife Mary put in a phone call to the Southern Stroud company and made the report.

Both Uliana and Carson tried fighting the fire but to no avail. They managed to save the family and three articles. Saved were a bicycle, a high chair and a sweater. Everything else owned by the young family was destroyed.

The home was of frame construction with shingle siding. The firemen were helpless as the building was all but completely in ruins. In below freezing weather, the firemen remained at the scene until about 2:30 a.m.

In Shock
In shock, the Uliana couple and children were cared for the night by the Carson family. The same misfortune befell the Carsons about 11 years ago.

Yesterday, the Ulianas were taken to Pen Argyl where they will live temporarily with his parents.

Uliana, a mason helper, was temporarily unemployed. He plans to reside with his brother-in-law, Freddy Hennett, while he hunts for work in the Stroudsburg area. His wife and children will remain in Pen Argyl.

Good Morning!

The promise of some people to be on time carries a lot of weight.

Northeast Digs Out Storm Blamed For 100 Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Northeast fought a relentless battle with muscle and machine Sunday to dig out from under a strangling Saturday snowstorm.

The storm was blamed for nearly 100 deaths by unofficial estimate.

Entire communities, including some major cities, were virtually immobilized under snow as high as 30 inches.

Winds that were clocked steadily as high as 75 miles an hour swirled the snow in drifts higher than the tops of automobiles.

The creeping paralysis began early Saturday when the two-pronged storm swept into the Northeast from the west and from the south.

By mid-day Saturday the disruption of travel and vital services was nearly complete as the storm swept northward from the Carolinas, Virginia and West Virginia through Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, and southern and central New England.

Numerous major highways were clogged with thousands of snow-stalled automobiles, bus lines and commuter trains abandoned.

Yank, Danish Ships Collide

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP)—Two cargo ships—one American and the other Danish—collided Sunday night, sending the Danish vessel to the bottom of Tokyo Bay.

An extensive search was under way for five crewmen missing from the Danish ship, the Laust Maersk. Forty-three other crewmen and four American passengers were rescued. Thirteen of those picked up from the icy waters of the bay were reported injured.

The American ship, the 6,759-ton Alcoa Pioneer, was damaged in the bow but steamed into the port of Yokohama under her own power. None of the 43 crew members aboard the American ship were reported injured.

Holiday For Some Students

SOME PUPILS will have a holiday today as a result of the snow blizzard which hit the area over the weekend.

However, all schools in Stroudsburg will have sessions. The only exception is Hamilton Elementary School of the Stroud Union School District, which will not hold sessions.

Classes also will be held at Pen Argyl, Bangor, Immaculate Conception Parochial School, Pen Argyl; Pius X Parochial and Lady of Mt. Carmel Parochial School, Roseto.

Pleasant Valley Joint School and Pocono Mountain Joint Schools will hold classes.

schedules and airports in the Northeast closed down.

Entire communities lost power and telephone service, principally because overhead lines could not stand the strain of the heavy snow and high winds.

For the first time ever, New York City officially banned all automobile travel except for official and emergency trips.

Nearly a dozen cities and towns, mostly in New England, proclaimed emergency conditions.

Another On Way??

As the Northeast was digging out from under its heavy shroud, heavy snow fell Sunday from Nebraska southward over Kansas and into Oklahoma and portions of north central Texas.

Heavy rain fell in the southern areas.

The Weather Bureau reported the storm in the south central portion of the nation was heading eastward and a little to the north, but added that it poses no immediate threat to the already-battered Northeast.

Sunny weather in the 30s aided the snowdiggers, who took no Sunday holiday.

The storm followed 16 consecutive days of below freezing temperature. Oil dealers in New England reported consumption of heating fuel was up 16 per cent from the same period last year. Rhode Island state officials called the Saturday storm the worst in that state in at least 57 years.

Hope To Restore
Major buslines said they hope to restore service by Monday morning. Airlines said plane travel also might be possible by morning.

The through trains of such lines as the Pennsylvania, New Haven and New York Central railroads continued service during the storm, although no attempt was possible to adhere to schedules.

Public transportation systems suffered the most. In many cases, stalled autos forced cancellation of all such service by mid-Saturday.

Deer Starvation

State Considering Emergency Action

HARRISBURG (AP)—Severe winter weather has prompted the State Game Commission to consider taking emergency action to protect Pennsylvania's big deer herd from the danger of starvation.

Glenn L. Bowers, chief of the commission's research division, said Saturday "severe emergency conditions" now existed in snow-battered forest areas and things might get worse.

Therefore, he added, the commission is going to make certain deer have enough food to carry them through the remainder of the winter season.

Bowers said the commission had already been aiding the deer. He said employees and volunteer sportsmen cut 2,134 acres of browse—the tender twigs on which the animal feeds—on state-owned land. More browse will be cut and more corn probably will be put out for deer, he added.

With one snow storm after another, much of the browse has been hidden from the herd, Bowers explained.

He said implementation of the commission's emergency program will be discussed at a meeting Monday.

He said most of the food will be taken in on the ground but added that some might be airlifted. However, airlifts are ineffective in most cases because a lot of the food falls into deep snow and the deer can't get to it.

Bowers emphasized there have been very few reports of deer dying because of the weather, but added, "We want to act before it gets too late."

You CAN Get Better Grades—VI

Poor Handwriting Is One Of Reasons Students Fail

By Leslie J. Nason, Ed. D., WITH Harry Karns

DON'T KID yourself that good penmanship is no longer important in this world of typewriters, dictaphones, and tape recorders. It's just as important to you as it was to your grandfather when he went to school.

Poor handwriting is one of the major reasons why students fail. The student has no typewriter or recorder with him in the classroom when taking notes or answering exam questions. If he writes well, he stands a better chance of making good grades.

Writing happens to be a complex chore. We never really understood

First, you must form a concept or picture in your mind. Then you must put this into words and arrange the words in sentences. Next, you must write all the necessary letters and symbols on the paper with the capitals and the punctuation marks in the right places and with the words spelled correctly.

Writing is a muscular as well as a mental operation. If the writing muscles are poorly trained and too weak to work very long, you are handicapped almost as much as you would be by a damaged brain.

We never really understood what a severe block poor writing habits can be until we met John. He came to us complaining of low grades on essay type exams. His penmanship was terrible.

We suggested simply that he practice writing. We hoped his grades might be raised by what is called the "halo" effect. That is, the teacher might grade him higher because his paper looked good, not necessarily because he had more to say.

John practiced, his penmanship improved, and he got better grades on essay questions. The old halo effect was working!

Gelinas Made It To Tombouctou

"MADE IT, Gelinas." That was the total content of a telegram received Saturday from Jack Gelinas, former East Stroudsburg resident now stationed in Lagos, Nigeria, with the Mobile Oil Co.

In one of his fortnightly articles in The Daily Record, Gelinas had written that he had planned to leave Lagos "with hope of reaching that same primitive city" he had read about as a boy.

His destination was described as "one of the three most inaccessible cities on the face of the globe."

What was his destination? He invited students to write or call The Daily Record with their guess. The correct answer, Gelinas wrote, will receive from him a souvenir purchased from the farthest point reached on his journey.

Kanyak First

A number of people called with answers. The first to give the correct place name was John Kanyak, of 274 Broadhead Ave., East Stroudsburg. He said Timbuktu.

The city is also known as Tombouctou. Ross Gordon, of Marshalls Creek, was the first to give this spelling of the name.

What Kanyak will receive will have to wait for Gelinas to return to Lagos.

On his journey to Timbuktu (Tombouctou), he planned to go by car the first four days, then two and a half days by river boat and the final phase — over-land — by camel. His chances on reaching his destination depended greatly on the height of the Niger River. The odds were heavily against him if the river were either too high or too low.

On Schedule

Judging from the telegram received here, he made it on schedule. His next letter is expected to tell his friends back home of his "fabulous adventure."

Gelinas is a son of Mrs. A. J. Gelinas, of 189 Analomink St., East Stroudsburg.

Timbuktu (Tombouctou), according to World Book Encyclopedia, has a population of about 7,000, is a trading center in French West Africa, which was founded about A.D. 1100. It is in the Sudan, near the southern boundary of the Sahara. Timbuktu is nine miles north of Kabora, its port on the Niger River.

It lies in a region of low marshes and sandy wastelands which has been called "the meeting place of the camel and the canoe." Great caravans of camels enter the town every year. March and June are the chief trading months. In these months the population often rises to 25,000.

Snow Moving Meet Today

BURGESS Edward A. Doran of Stroudsburg last night reported that he will meet today with Borough Manager Harold Snyder and Police Chief John B. Tretheway to map final phases of the snow removal program.

He said no parking will be permitted on a number of streets each day to permit the snow removal equipment to operate unhampered.

As the work progresses, Doran said, other streets will be designated and the schedule publicized.

Most of the snow has been removed from the parking meter areas, but the heavy accumulation is piled high at the curbs. Removal of this snow is necessary as a fire protection measure as well as a convenience to motorists, the Burgess said.

Monroe Assistance Below State Norm

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — Against a statewide total of 3.5 per cent of population dependent on public assistance in December, Monroe County rolls showed a total of 2.6 per cent, the State Department of Public Welfare indicated yesterday.

Of 1039 persons on relief rolls of Monroe County during the month, 499 were receiving aid to dependent children. Approximately 33 per cent of the county expenditure of $40,559 was made to this group.

Next largest group was that receiving general assistance, a total of 221 persons, followed by 196 persons receiving old age assistance. Aid to disabled assistance was issued to 62 persons and blind pensions accounted for the remaining 61 persons on relief rolls.

New Cases Opened

More new cases were opened than old ones closed in the county during the month. Loss of employment of case members, loss of income of someone else in the household, or loss of outside contributions were the most frequent reasons for the opening of new public assistance cases.

One hundred twenty-five applications for assistance were filed during the month in the county: 85 for general assistance, 31 for aid to dependent children assistance, five for blind pensions, three for old age assistance and one application for aid to disabled assistance.

2 Defendants In Depot Case On Probation

SCRANTON—Two defendants have been placed on probation and three others have launched attacks on the charges placed against them in connection with the asserted theft of government property at the U.S. Signal Depot at Tobyhanna.

Federal Judge John W. Murphy placed Walter E. Smith, 1701 Laurel St., Stroudsburg, and Harry Zinskie Jr., Blakely, on two years' probation. Full restitution of all thefts has been made, the court was told.

The court took under advisement motions filed by the three other defendants—Howell T. Whitting, Mount Pocono; Francis Widdoss, Swiftwater, and Charles Beck, Carbondale. All five were indicted Jan. 12 charged with theft and conspiracy.

Beck filed motions to inspect Signal Depot records and tangible objects, to itemize the merchandise allegedly stolen and asking for a bill of particulars.

Whitting asked that the conspiracy indictment be dismissed as it pertains to him. He is seeking a severance from the two other defendants who have decided to stand trial. He charges he is being prejudiced by joinder of the defendants and contends there is no allegation of any connection between Whitting and Widdoss.

Widdoss asked dismissal of the indictment on grounds it is vague, indefinite and uncertain. He is a justice of the peace at Swiftwater and a former station agent for the Lackawanna-Erie Railroad at Tobyhanna. Beck also worked for the railroad and the other three were employed at the depot.

Food For Deer Board To Meet

THE EXECUTIVE board of Food for Deer and Wildlife, Canadensis, will meet at 12 noon at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. The board will elect the permanent county officers to administer the organization.

A film strip will be shown to the group showing the operation to date.

If you wish to contribute please make your check or money order payable to Food for the Deer and Wildlife and mail to Box 33, Canadensis, Pa.

Stroud Twp. Firemen Avert Blast

STROUD Township Volunteer Fire Company averted a major fire last night in its quick response to an alarm at Sutcliffe's Gas Station, Route 209, one mile west of Stroudsburg.

Fire Chief Lester Rice stated that the fire began about 5:30 p.m., in the rafters of the newly constructed station. It was caused by an overheated electric heater situated on the ceiling of the building.

Damage was slight, most of which was caused by firemen trying to get at the source of the blaze.

"A couple of minutes more and the whole gas station would have blown up," Rice reported.

High Pressure Lines

The firemen used high pressure line in fighting the fire and used approximately 10 gallons of water. Rice reported that the high pressure creates steam and as a result no water damage was done to the building.

The company used two trucks while two others stood by. They returned to headquarters about 6:15 p.m.

Dr. Shafer Named To Assay Unit

DR. FLOYD W. Shafer, of Stroudsburg, is one of 15 persons appointed to the annual assay commission which meets this week at the Philadelphia Mint.

One other Pennsylvanian, John E. Power, of Philadelphia, was among those named by President Kennedy. The appointments were announced by the director of the mint.

The commission is designated annually to meet on the second Wednesday in February to test the fineness of silver coins made at the Philadelphia Mint, one of only two in the United States. The other is in Denver.

A TRIBUTE TO BARRETT TOWNSHIP And FOOD for the DEER and WILDLIFE

Box 33, Canadensis, Pa.

FROM GENE COLEMAN, STAFFWRITER SCRANTON TIMES, FEB. 3, 1961

WINTER WILDLIFE HELP—During the past week the attention of the entire state has been focused on the plight of the wildlife—particularly the deer—in several sectors of our area. The spotlight has been on the Pocono Mountains especially, since that is the area where the most concerted efforts aimed at helping the deer get through alive have been concentrated. That is not to say the same things are not being done in other areas; it's merely that the Pocono operation, as of now, was the biggest of all in the memory of most sportsmen and conservation minded people. In the past week I've spent considerable time in Monroe and Pike Counties, bouncing around snow-clogged back roads and trails by jeep, truck and on shank's mare. I flew over the deep woods by helicopter and hovered over herds of ravenously white-tailed deer drooping of food were made. I saw deer dead of starvation and deer frozen to death. In one of the toughest Winters we can recall in a good many moons, the seemingly endless sub-zero temperatures, terrifically thick snow cover and lack of natural browse have combined to take a heavy toll of one of our prized game animals. I saw Marine Corps Reserve trucks and jeeps, helicopter, bulldozers, tractors and guys carrying baled alfalfa on their backs and toboggan; all had a single mission—get the feed to the deer no matter where they were found. I saw deer stand numbly, waiting while we tossed baled feed from the tailgate of a six-wheeled Marine Corps truck, losing all their fear of humans. All in all, I'd say it boils down to the fact that our wildlife is having one very rough time in some areas. This doesn't necessarily mean the situation is the same in all areas. In some sections, primarily good farm country, the white-tails appear to be making the grade okay. In others I have seen bony-backed deer chomping away on ornamental hemlocks at resort lodges or worse, standing belly-deep in snow in an area completely browsed out and waiting for one of two things—help or death.

ORGANIZED HELP—It would be impossible to list the names of clubs and individuals who have pitched in to help. There have been too many and I'm sure I would miss some one along the way. However, it seems the "Food For Deer and Wildlife" drive sparked by the handful of sportsmen from Barrett Township gained the most momentum and appears to have a top-notch program of organization in mind. Sparkplugging this group are John Valence, Stroudsburg, and Carl Brown of Canadensis. Briefly, the plan is to organize a statewide program whereby contributions would be solicited to contract with farmers during the growing season for certain amounts of feed. The feed would be harvested and then stockpiled in strategically located depots in each county and ready for quick distributions when needed. Basically, I feel that if the deer and other wildlife are to get help in areas where they need it, it must be on an organized level and not on a catch-as-catch-can setup. Meanwhile, the Game Commission has become the target of much criticism from many circles with charges that it isn't doing as much as it should. Without coming to its defense we must remember that that agency is clearly limited to state game lands and deer are no respecters of boundary lines. Then too, what about the sprawling forest areas owned by clubs and associations that are verboten to all but members? There are many angles to be considered but there is one inescapable fact. That is that the wildlife belongs to all of us, no matter whose land it happens to be on at any given time. For the most part, our conditions for our wildlife—barring the weather—are products of our own doing. I contend that this is no time for table-thumping or name calling. It is time for positive thinking and organized action on the part of every one who enjoys the outdoors, hunter and non-hunter alike. Possibly clubs and other groups all with the common goal of helping get the feed out to the deer in the snow-choked areas can get together on the statewide basis suggested by those up in Monroe County and knit forces into a well-organized program minus the loose ends and tangents which are impossible to escape with scores of individual efforts.

Snow, Snow...

In the "good old days" our grandfathers tell us about, heavy snows such as we have experienced this Winter would not have made too much difference in the lives of most people.

But today, when the automobile has replaced the sled, the bakery truck has taken Mother out of the bread-making business and the family cow has given way to the milk-man, even a moderate snow can bring about a sudden change in our living habits.

State and local governments are up against the same situation these days. The heavy snows since early December have caused a heavy drain on borough finances as crews and equipment were kept on the job to keep streets open to traffic.

Not only has the record snowfall this Winter cost a pretty penny for manpower and machines, but it has also cut into revenues the boroughs had expected from parking meters. There just hasn't been the normal flow of traffic and use of parking meter spaces in the business section.

A similar problem has plagued the State Highways Department. Heavy snows have kept cindering and plowing crews on the job throughout the Winter, sometimes on an around-the-clock schedule, so that money which might otherwise go for maintenance or new construction must be spent or ridding the highways of snow and ice.

We don't know whether the boroughs and the state have contingency funds which will help absorb the added costs of the abnormal weather. If they do, they'll certainly find need for the money.

In any event, congratulations for a job well done in the face of heavy odds must go to all the crews which have battled the snows throughout the county. All of us have been inconvenienced many times in the last two months, but without their yeoman efforts we would have been paralyzed in almost everything we tried to do.

We live on wheels in this automobile age, and the highway crews and equipment are what keep the wheels moving in snowy times like these.

Dispels National Security Fog

It is reassuring that President Kennedy favors having Captains McKone and Olmstead, the two U.S. fliers shot down over the Barents Sea by the Russians last Summer, tell their story to the public.

At his press conference, the President said:

"I will say, when they finish their short leave and when they have been debriefed by the Air Force, and the Air Force has had an opportunity to have conversations with them, as far as I am concerned I would be glad to have them talk to the press. Therefore, I would assume they would be available to the press as soon as that was over."

The President's statement was in reply to a question by a reporter who complained that the Pentagon termed the "black-out" surrounding the two released fliers as in keeping with "the national interest."

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Freedom To Know

The Eisenhower Administration has generally taken advantage of its executive prerogative to suppress such information as it did not desire Congress or the people to have. Some such information may be of so delicate a nature as to warrant temporary suppression but there can be no reason why the Tehran papers have not yet been published.

Parts of the Yalta and Malta documentation have been made available in a volume which is difficult to read and analyze, but Tehran, which precedes Yalta, has been kept under cover, perhaps in the hope that it will be forgotten.

In the historic quarrel between President Eisenhower and Sen. Joseph McCarthy, executive privilege loomed large. McCarthy could have managed to overcome presidential opposition had he agreed to the proposition that all sessions of his committee be executive, which means sub-rosa, and that he then submit the transcript of the record to the White House for review and decision.

The question was discussed at great length and I was present at some of the discussions. The central argument against the proposition was that Congress could not turn over to the President its authority to investigate.

President Kennedy, in his State of the Union Message apparently repudiates the Eisenhower policy of secrecy. He said:

" . . . For my part, I shall withhold from neither the Congress nor the people any fact or report, past, present or future, which is necessary for a free and informed judgment of our conduct and hazards. I shall neither shift the burden of executive decisions to the Congress, nor void responsibility for the outcome of those decisions."

From this language it is to be accepted that the Tehran papers will be made available so that it is possible to understand exactly what happened in Eastern Europe at the end of the war and why the termination of World War II, now 15 years delayed, has become so complicated. It is at Tehran that great decisions were made.

Currently, the Eastland Committee investigation concerning Cuba, which has been going on for some weeks, mostly in executive session, will undoubtedly proceed full force until the facts are available and Congress will have sufficient data to act intelligently on such decisions as it may have to make.

The possibility of the reorganization of the procedures in the State Department may result from the Cuban situation if it is established, as it may be, that decisions are made at too low a level which may be costly to the country.

It is true that not everything between governments can be made public because each side has the right to decide what it wishes to do about questions in which it is involved.

Furthermore, as long as we are in the Cold War, which is war by other than usual means, it may be necessary to keep strategic data and certainly tactical data secret to avoid aiding the enemy.

But such matters should be based upon policy laid down at a high level, not by every bureaucratic Tom, Dick and Harry whose rubber stamp reads "Secret."

If this interpretation of President Kennedy's purpose is correct, Congressional committees will no longer fail in their investigations because they are unable to obtain data already in the possession of the Executive. Of course, the FBI and the CIA have to be excluded from this generalization as it is impossible for such organizations to function at all if their green files are available to untrained eyes. On the other hand, the Kefauver Committee which is often accused of having been noisy and futile at times lacked the data which could have made its sessions significant.

The right to know, however, is not limited to Congressional committees. In recent years, the press has suffered from bureaucratic suppression of the news. Often what has been suppressed had to be dug out and reported as rumors and anonymous leaks. Such reporting is undignified and should be unnecessary.

The press is representative of the people in their right to know what their government is doing. The formal press conference is insufficient for that.

Too few questions are asked and although President Kennedy made a good impression as an answer man, it is often necessary to go to the expert, to the man who is handling a problem, to get the background from him. The press should take full advantage of President Kennedy's voluntary offer to recognize the Right to Know.

Reports From Congress

15th's Population

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington—Final Census Bureau population counts of the nation's 437 Congressional Districts show that Republicans now represent 13 of the nation's most heavily populated districts, and that the average Republican Congressman now has 35,000 more constituents than the average Democratic Congressman.

Congressional Quarterly computations, based on official Census Bureau figures released Feb. 3, show that the average U.S. Congressional District should have a population of about 410,481 persons. Population growth has increased the average 18.6 per cent from the 346,031 average district figure based on the 1960 Census.

In the 1960 elections Republican Congressional candidates won 275 districts with an average population of 430,546 persons, while Democratic House candidates were victorious in 262 districts with an average of 395,459 constituents.

Reason for Redistricting—The disparity in population between districts—from 1,014,460 in the California 28th to 177,431 in Michigan's 12th—illustrates the primary reason for periodic re-aligning of Congressional Districts. The idea is to even out the population in districts within a state as much as possible.

Reapportionment based on the 1960 Census already has begun with some states gaining and some losing seats in the House of Representatives and some remaining static.

Of the 20 most heavily populated districts, six are in California, four in Florida, two in Illinois, and the remainder scattered. The Nation's largest district, with a population of 1,014,460, is the California 28th, located South of Los Angeles, which is represented by James B. Utt (R). Among other especially large districts are the Florida 4th, the New York 1st and the Illinois 13th.

Democrats currently hold 12 and Republicans eight of the 20 least heavily populated districts. Rep. John B. Bennett (R) represents the country's smallest district, the Michigan 12th, in that state's rural northwest corner, with 177,431 constituents. Other especially small districts are the Arkansas 2nd, the South Dakota 2nd and the Colorado 4th.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D) represents the nation's sixth smallest district, the Texas 4th, with a population of 216,371. His district is adjacent to the Dallas district represented by Texas' only Republican Congressman, Bruce Alger. Alger's district has 951,527 inhabitants, making it the third largest district in the United States.

Off The Record

Time was when persons were crying for the need of snow to make the winter more realistic. Over the weekend, however, we failed to hear anyone ask for more of the white stuff. It seems all of us had our share of the "picturesque" beauty which falls so majestically from the sky.

Men who are rated in the soft-job category had to show their mettle and resort to manual labor. While it taxed the unused muscles and breathing they carried on in the tradition of the hardy old souls of the west who blazed the blizzardy Oregon Trail.

In fact in this section alone we would venture and say that the unemployed list was at its lowest in a long, long spell. Persons who could pick up a shovel made money and private plows and bulldozer operators coined the cash as fast as humanly possible.

Saturday and Sunday were fruitful days for many despite the hardship bestowed on the populace.

While we don't advocate such measures to cut down the number of jobless, snow does have its good points besides its regular winter attributes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klingel, Broad St., Stroudsburg, didn't mind the elements Friday. Klingel and his family motored to Easton and returned without too much trouble.

On well, good drivers can go and come in any weather.

We've done this before but it still is worthwhile. If any one outfit deserves the Carnegie Medal then it is Frank Smith's Highway Department.

The roads crew worked before the storm started and then continued Friday, Saturday and Sunday to keep the main arteries open.

A look at the first-class state highways yesterday is proof of the magnificent job Smith's group and their borough counterparts performed under most hazardous conditions.

Veteran's Guide

Q—I am receiving railroad retirement payments and also veterans' pension. In filling out the income questionnaire received from VA, do I report my railroad retirement payments as "annual income" anticipated for 1961, or is this exempted?

A—If you are receiving pension under the old pension law, do not count your railroad retirement as income. If you came on the pension rolls after June 30, 1960, or changed from the old to the new law after that date, you must report as income all railroad retirement payments above the amount you contributed to the railroad retirement fund.

The Allen-Scott Report

Insurance Probe Split

By Robert S. Allen
Washington—The Senate Anti-Trust Investigating Committee, which has made numerous headlines probing high drug prices, fixed prize fights and other activities, is split wide open over a staff report that is highly critical of state regulation of insurance companies.

The study, based on two years of extensive inquiries under the direction of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman, flatly charges that many states are: "lax in their regulation of insurance companies, especially in the matter of rates," and forcefully calls for a "drastic review of state laws and regulations in order to effect better controls over insurance company operations."

With these general findings, the report then recommends the following major proposals to state officials:

Laws to provide more competition in insurance rates. Elimination of status and regulations that obstruct the cutting insurance rates by "independent companies."

Removal of requirements that compel insurance companies to be members of private rate bureaus. Such membership should be solely voluntary.

Imposition of tighter controls over insurance trade associations and their operations.

While vigorously urging these far-reaching state measures, the study strongly disapproves of federal regulation of the insurance industry. However, it does warn this may become necessary "if the states do not effectively perform that function."

The report's opposition to federal control is the only point on which the probes are agreed.

They are split 5 to 3 over publication of the explosive study.

Siding with Kefauver are Senators John Carroll (D., Colo.) and Philip Hart (D., Mich.). Strongly opposing them in the backstage wrangle over releasing the report as an official Committee document are three Republicans and two Democrats—Senators Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), Roman Hruska (R., Neb.), Thomas Dodd (D., Conn.) and William Blakely (D., Tex.).

The last two are new members on the committee. Dodd's state, Connecticut, is known as the "insurance capital of the U.S." Blakely, a wealthy oilman, has been an official of insurance companies.

Outcome of this clash is conjectural. Insiders are saying Kefauver has offered to "moderate" certain drastic portions of the study in an effort to get it published. If that fails, he is credited with planning to release it as a minority report.

The Tennessee investigator is also preparing to introduce a bill for a "model system" of insurance regulation for the District of Columbia. This measure would put into effect the various recommendations of the report, stressing particularly those affecting insurance rates.

More probes—A new series of hearings on drug prices will be conducted by the Kefauver Committee. In a memorandum to other Committee members, the Tennessee states, "Information in our files reveals the existence of certain financial activities and inter-connections of leading drug firms which are properly the subject for thorough scrutiny."

Sen. Wayne Morse (D., Ore.) has asked the Committee to "investigate merger activity and the trend of concentration in the Douglas fir industry." A report on this is being prepared by Dr. Walter Mead, head of the University of California at Santa Barbara, for the U.S. Forestry Service. Morse has been told by Kefauver he will ask President Kennedy to turn over this report to the Committee "as a basis for determining the desirability of a full investigation."

Numerous complaints have been made to the Committee by small steel fabricators charging "monopolistic profiteering" in nickel. Senator Kefauver, in a report to Committee members, states these claims are based on "profiteering through speculations involving the sale of nickel to the government for stockpiling purposes, then purchases from this stockpile are resold to small producers of stainless and alloy steel at artificially enhanced prices."

Paris bound—Lt. Gen. James Gavin (ret.), World War II paratroop battle commander and former Army research chief, will be named ambassador to France, President Kennedy has persuaded Gavin to accept this major diplomatic post, largely because he is a close friend of President DeGaulle. Kennedy wanted to appoint Gavin secretary of the Army, but he declined.

Rep. Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), new chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, has decided that it will take too much of his time and energy to continue as head of the House Democratic Study Group, when Lee Metcalf, then 100 liberals from all parts of the country, Holifield was selected to head them last fall (D. Mont.) was elected to the Senate. But Holifield now finds Senate. But Holifield now finds he has his hands full running the Joint Atomic Committee. Leading possibility as Holifield's successor as chairman of the study group is Rep. John Blatnik (D., Minn.).

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

Keeping Dogs At Home

Dear Mr. Editor:

This morning I happily read the news item concerning the unlicensed dogs. This is an important thing, but the people must be reminded that a license is not all a dog needs. It needs to be kept at home.

Several months ago The Daily Record carried an ad in its classified section concerning a dog which had been poisoned. Now this is not a human thing to do even to a dog but if this person had his garbage can raided daily, I can almost sympathize with him.

Since late Fall I have been picking up the things daily, which a huge well groomed boxer-type dog removes from my container, which by the way, is more than adequate. This animal dumps numerous containers in our area. One of the cans belongs to two elderly well known ladies who are physically unable to constantly cope with this problem.

I have inquired as to the ownership of this particular dog but have been unsuccessful in my venture. I certainly hope the owner of the dog reads this letter as I am getting tired of the annoying nuisance. This is a lovely dog and obviously its owners cannot be too concerned as to its welfare or they would be more concerned about letting it run at large unaccompanied.

If the owners of dogs would be more thoughtful and would be to these affairs, our policemen would be able to spend more time with matters of greater importance.

Social Security Guide

Q—I am over 65 years old but never filed application for old-age benefits because I work and earn about $2400. a year. I've heard I can now get benefits regardless of my earnings. Is this true?

A—Not quite. Beginning in 1961 a beneficiary who earns $1200 or less will get his benefit payments for all 12 months of the year. A beneficiary who earns more than $1200 in a year will have $1 of his benefits withheld for each $2 that he earns from $120 up to $1500. For every $1 that his earnings go above $1500, $1 of benefits will be withheld. It is therefore possible that you will be entitled to receive one or more benefit checks next year depending on your earnings and your benefit rate.

Q—Some of the farmers I work for say my work is covered by social security and others say it is not. Is it?

A—Whether your work for any farmer is covered by social security depends on how much money you are paid by that farmer or how many days you work for him during a year. Whenever one farmer pays you $150 or more in cash, or you work for one farmer on 20 or more days during the year, you are due social security credit for the work you did for him. Both you and the farm employer must pay social security taxes on your wages, and the employer must report these wages.

Q—If I am not paid $150 in cash wages by any one farmer, does this mean that none of my work is covered by social security?

A—Not necessarily. There is one other way that your work can be covered by social security. If you work for one farmer on 20 or more days during the year and you are paid on a time basis, that is, by the hour, the day, the week, or the month, your employer must withhold and pay social security taxes on your cash wages no matter what your pay totals.

Q—Is there any way that I can check to see if my farm work has been credited to my social security account?

A—Yes. You can obtain a post card (Form OAR-7004) at any social security office. When you mail this post card, you will get a statement of earnings reported to your social security account. However, you should keep in mind that farm employers do not send in a report of your wages until after the end of the calendar year. It is about 6 months after the end of the year before the reports coming in can be recorded to each worker's social security account.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Making a mountain out of a molehill is one of my favorite indoor past-times, but it didn't take much imagination to make a mountain out of the snow that was piled head-high on our back lawn, on Saturday morning.

Especially with the memory of the trip home Friday night still fresh in my mind. The snow wasn't just falling — it was being pushed and right into my face as I plodded up the driveway, already more than knee-deep in snow. With my head down I couldn't see where I was going but I went plodding along, following the tracks the cat had made.

Worked fine, even in the dark, until I found myself following the tracks up the side lawn — after a rabbit, no doubt. Anyway, I wasn't eager to face the elements again on Saturday morning. By that time, all traces of a path had vanished, the radio was full of canned meetings and stores closing early, the television busy with the emergency measures being taken in New York City; and I had visions of an outside world as uninhabited and inaccessible as Antarctica.

Anyway, it seemed incredible that Will and Ellen Clelland were still planning to have that party at their cabin, not only up back of Marshall's Creek but back of the back road. It's always a let-down to give up something you've been looking forward to, but I had resigned myself: when all of a sudden it wasn't called off at all.

They're crazy! I thought as I dressed as if I really were going on a Byrd expedition. I'm even crazier, I told myself firmly as I stepped out into the drizzle and promptly sat down. But the funny thing is that the hardest part of the trip was down to the car.

The roads had been ploughed, the Clellands had shoveled a mile or so of the nearest path you ever saw, the moon turned the whole world silver, and it was so warm as to seem almost balmy. They had a fire in the fireplace, Swedish meatballs and Ellen's own version of petit fours, and fascinating company.

So who's crazy? I asked myself contentedly on the way home, savoring again the experience of meeting new people and discovering new facets of old friends: people who do foolish things or people foolish enough to build their own prisons?

How To Conquer Fear During Job Interview

By ANNE HEYWOOD

Almost everybody is frightened on a job interview but, because some of us are able to conceal our fright and to act calm and sophisticated, those of us who cannot do this feel like real cowards.

I know people to whom the prospect of a job interview is so terrifying that it can paralyze them for two days in advance, and make them sleepless the night before and cause them to lose their breakfasts the morning of the big event.

Not Related

Actually, this kind of fear has relatively little to do with the facts in the case.

Stenographers who really know how to take dictation rapidly and accurately and whose typing is accurate, fast and neat, can be just as frightened as girls who are slipshod and second-rate in their skills.

Some people are just born able to conceal their fear, when they have it, and others are not.

Oldsters Most Difficult

The most difficult group is the older workers. I think. No matter how capable they may be, or how good at their jobs, they can't help feeling that, because they are older, nobody really wants them, and this is the kind of feeling on which fear and nervousness feed.

In trying to help them get over this, it will do little good to remind them of how good they are, what fine references they have, etc., etc. It is not a reasonable feeling and therefore reason is not going to cure it. It is an emotional thing.

Start Small

My experience has been that it pays to lick small fears in any way we can — and that this carries over, then, into other areas, helping us overcome larger and more important fears.

I know a girl who finally overcame her fear of elevators. She did it by making herself ride in them a good deal — taking unnecessary trips up and down.

After a while, she found that nothing very bad happened to her and that her feelings were falsely grounded — that, as a matter of fact, plenty of nice people rode in elevators every day, giving it not a second thought!

This victory over fear helped her in overcoming her fear of job interviews, too.

If we develop courage as we go along, it comes to our aid when

Criminologist To Speak At Dutch Treat Thursday

"Is There a Mafia?" is one of the questions to be answered at Dutch Treat Club at their dinner meeting Thursday at the Penn-Stroud Hotel by Donal E. J. MacNamara, dean of the New York Institute of Criminology.

Dean MacNamara, a husky six-footer who reads and writes Irish poetry for relaxation, has had more than 25 years experience in police research work. He is a specialist in law enforcement agency organization and procedure. He has held his post with the New York Institute of Criminology for more than a decade.

There he trains police and investigators from many foreign lands in all phases of scientific criminal investigation. He has taught at the University of Southern California, New York University, Rutgers University and has lectured at most of the major American and European universities.

In 1960, he served as representative delegate to the Second United Nations Criminal Congress in London and the Fourth International Congress on Criminology at the Hague. He is active in many police, correctional and crime-oriented societies and is a contributor to professional journals in his field.

Youth Hostel Roads Open, But Not Way Home

LaAnna.—A weekend in the country has been stretched to an interminable stay at the Youth Hostel in LaAnna for some 50 young people and their counselors.

The young people, members of the Mattituck Presbyterian Church, Long Island, came up on Thursday night, planning to return on Sunday. Roads to the hostel were plowed open but after consultation with New York City where everything was at a standstill they decided to stay at the camp until New York is ready to let them through.

Bake Sale Saturday

Tannersville.—The Young Adult Bible Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday School will hold a bake sale on Feb. 11 at Metzgar's Market, Tannersville, beginning at 10:30 a.m. They will also offer African violets for sale.

Circle Today

Mary Martha Circle of the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church will meet this afternoon at 1 p.m. at the church.

Soroptimists

Soroptimists will hold a business meeting on Thursday night at 7:30 in the offices of the Lawson Co., Main St., Stroudsburg.

How To Conquer Fear During Job Interview

we least expect it. Many times, the cause of our fear is something very indirect, and about which we can do a good deal.

Overweight An Excuse
One girl I know is afraid of job interviews because she is very much overweight and should take off about 20 pounds to be attractive enough to get a job. She prefers not to face the fact that she needs to diet, so she builds up an increasing fear of job interviews.

If she can make herself begin to diet, the fear will of course likely lessen and vanish, and she will find herself with a new confidence in her dealings with people.

Saylorsburg.—A donation of $10 was given to the March of Dimes at a meeting of the Ladies Aux. of the Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Fire Co., Saylorsburg held in the firehouse.

May 13 and October 14 were the dates set for the Spring and Fall penny suppers.

Mrs. Grant Knowles presided at the meeting which opened with devotions by Mrs. Anna M. Serfass, chaplain.

Games were played and refreshments were served with officers as hostesses.

At the meeting on Feb. 28 hostesses will be Mrs. Claude Eckley, Mrs. Katie Jones, Mrs. John Siegel and Mrs. Elsie Kresge.

Church Visiting Teams Divided Into 12 Tribes

Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg will conduct an every-member visitation during the Lenten season with 112 members of the parish serving as visitors.

For administrative purposes the teams will be divided into the Twelve Tribes of Israel. Each tribe will have as its leader a member of the vestry.

Divided into a Northern and Southern Kingdom, the Tribes will be headed by co-chairman Henry Peters Sr. and Gerald A. Snyder. Mrs. Alford Meyers will direct the northern kingdom and Robert Shively the Southern Kingdom.

The personnel of the Twelve Tribes will meet Wednesday at 7:30 in the main sanctuary for instruction and prayer in preparation for the Commissioning Service on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

Winter Foils Wedding Guests, Flowers, But Not The Bride And Bridegroom

La Anna.—Two feet of snow, a stranded matron of honor and best man and a minister who was snowbound contrived to change the wedding plans but not the wedding of Miss Edna M. Heinbokel of LaAnna and Robert L. Robinson of Springfield, N. J., which took place on Saturday.

Miss Heinbokel, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. F. W. Heinbokel, formerly of Scranton, and Mr. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Robinson of Vahalla, N. Y., were united in marriage at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Heinbokel home in LaAnna by Rev. Arthur Campney, Methodist pastor, who arrived in a borrowed car for the ceremony.

The double-ring ceremony was performed before a fireplace decorated with white chrysanthemums and snapdragons intertwined with native hemlock.

The bride, given in marriage by her aunt, Miss Augusta Gartner, of LaAnna and Lancaster, wore a street-length dress of Alencon lace with a fitted bodice, three-quarter length sleeves and a full skirt. Her shawl headpiece was of Venetian lace, falling from a band of orange blossoms and myrtle. Her white orchid bouquet had been side-tracked by the storm, and she carried an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and snapdragons.

The matron of honor, Dr. Dorothy Cole, who flew from Vermont, was stranded in New Jersey. Her place was taken by a sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Frederick Heinbokel, of Lancaster. She wore a wool dress of red and carried pepper mint pink carnations.

The best man was the bride's brother, Frederick Heinbokel. The bridegroom is associated with American Telephone and Telegraph at Springfield, N. J. where they will make their home.

A reception was held at The Sterling Inn, although only ten of the invited guests were able to make it.

Saturday reservations on a plane to Bermuda had to be cancelled, but the newlyweds left on Sunday for their wedding trip, as far from blizzards as possible.

Westwood Class

Westwood Class of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church will hold a covered dish supper at the church on Thursday night at 6.

Cancels Supper

Sunshine Class of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church has canceled the supper planned for Tuesday night.

Rapid boiling and frequent stirring causes bean skins to break when cooking. To keep them whole while cooking boil slowly and avoid stirring.

If cooking under pressure, allow time for a slow rise and fall of pressure so that beans will cook evenly without breaking.

A drinking straw cut in half and inserted upright in the pie while it is baking will take care of your juice problems.

Breadcrumb Muffins For New Hot Bread

If you're not shoveled out yet, today might be a good time to try making a new hot bread out of old bread crumbs:

BREAD CRUMB MUFFINS
1 cup sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup dark brown sugar (firmly packed)
1 egg
1/2 cup sifted pitted dates

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt; stir in bread crumbs. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg thoroughly. Stir in flour mixture alternately with milk; fold in dates. Do not beat. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 25 to 30 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Serve at once. Makes 8 medium-sized muffins.

Sisterhood Luncheon At Temple Tuesday

The annual paid-up membership luncheon of the Sisterhood of the Temple Israel will be held on Tuesday at 12:30 at the vestry rooms.

Mrs. Sumar Schwartz, program chairman, has arranged for the presentation of "College Days," an original skit prepared by the National Women's League with which the local Sisterhood is affiliated. The playlet is being directed by Mrs. Jack Weismann.

Mrs. Seymour Katz, luncheon chairman, has arranged for a special menu.

New members to be installed include Mrs. Max Berman, Mrs. Helen Dean, Mrs. Allen Ginsberg, Mrs. Julius Ginsberg, Mrs. S. Greenberg and James Novins.

Jr. Women Meet Tuesday

The Junior Woman's Club will meet Tuesday night at 8 at the Stroud Community House for a member participation program. Main business of the meeting will be final plans for their desert-fashion show scheduled for Wednesday night at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Barrett Legion

Barrett.—The Evans Blitz American Legion Post 922, Barrett, will meet Wednesday night at 8 at the home of John Krummel.

Kitchen trick: A little lemon along with melted butter and minced parsley, does a lot for boiled potatoes.

Valentine Party For Club Wed.

Saylorsburg.—A Valentine party will mark the meeting of the Progressive Woman's Club of Saylorsburg on Wednesday night at 8 at Chestnuthill School, Brodheadsville.

The program will include "Songs of Yesterday" and a talk on Community Affairs.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Robert Arner, chairman Mrs. LeRoy Hinton, Mrs. Robert Stewart, Mrs. John Mills, Mrs. LaVerne McVett, Mrs. Charles Hendry, Mrs. William Lowenberry, Mrs. Rudolph Mueller, Mrs. William Fisher, Mrs. William Gould, Mrs. Raymond Serfass, Mrs. Wesley Shafer and Mrs. Nevin Dorshimer.

'Run-Around' Supper Held By Scout Troop

NEWFOUNDLAND.—The language spoken was strictly "American," but the food had an international flavor at the progressive dinner held by the White Rose Patrol of Laurel Girl Scout Troop One.

The traveling began at 4:45 p.m. with a trip to the home of Mary Lou Nolan for tomato juice and crackers in American style, with Inger Madsen assisting the hostess. Next came a French salad with crackers and potato chips at the home of Pamela Eggert, with Margie Gearhart as co-hostess. The main course, Danish Goulash, was served at the home of the scoutleader, Mrs. Alberta Marsch, with Lauretta Hanlon assisting Mrs. Marsch.

An Hawaiian dessert, pineapple upside-down cake with whipped cream and cherries, and Hawaiian punch, climaxed the "run-around supper" at the home of Connie Keiter, with Bliss Arneberg assisting. A game was played at each stop.

Meanwhile, back at Southern Wayne Joint School, the other patrols were hard at work. The Valley's Treasure Patrol made valentines for their arts and crafts requirements for second class badges. The Bluejeans Patrol drew sketches of Girl Scouts from other lands. The Star Dust Patrol worked on several badges. This latter patrol had enjoyed a spaghetti dinner recently.

The Girl Scouts will sell cookies during the first part of February beginning on Monday.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"Where were you until three o'clock this morning?" That was the question put to me most frequently last Friday, after "Papa" Wyckoff mentioned over the radio that I'd been "somewhere down around Bangor" until that hour, and he felt his "younguns should be getting to bed earlier." He did admit, however, that I was wide awake and talking about the Wyckoff values in our fashion and other departments... but this is to be expected under any condition. After all, Wyckoff merchandise and prices are ALWAYS eye-openers.

As a matter of fact, I wasn't in Bangor, but in Easton, where I had the very great pleasure of meeting some very charming persons... members of the PTA of St. Jane de Chantal Catholic Church, and their priests. It had originally been planned to have me display my Madonnas and speak before the December meeting, but this had to be postponed until a week ago last Thursday, when it stormed again you recall, forcing another change of date. Dorothy Storms, a former president of BPW and mother-in-law of the PTA program chairman, Phyllis Storms, was kind enough to offer transportation, and we had a grand evening.

St. Jane's Church is in the midst of an extensive building program, and Father Farrell is justifiably proud of the accomplishments that have been made in the past five years. His parochial school is large, airy, beautifully modern, and so immaculate it seems hardly to have been used, despite the hundreds of children matriculating there. I was particularly interested in the first grade, where ninety-five little desks were set in prim, neat rows. Ninety-five first graders!—what a challenge to a teacher.

Father Farrell is a delightfully witty man, and I was intrigued by the brevity, point, and humor of the answers he gave questions put to him by the mothers. I can't quite understand why, with him at the head of the parish, anyone would wish to bring in a speaker less skilled.

One of the reasons I was invited was the interest aroused by a special broadcast over WVPO last Mother's Day when I interviewed Father Pappadeas at the Greek Orthodox Church of Hempstead, L.I., about the Madonnas weeping there. The PTA members were especially interested in hearing about my pilgrimage, and also learning the latest details which I had obtained from Father Nick, an assistant pastor at the Hempstead cathedral. Father Nick tells me that two of the Madonnas have been given to the Archdiocese and are in New York City. When moved to Stamford, Conn., and Buffalo, N.Y. for special services, they resumed the weeping. The first Madonna, ("The Sorrowful Mother"), still at St. Paul's, has not wept since its original, rather brief period of doing so.

Father Farrell tells me he is acquainted with Stroudsburg, and I hope that many of his parishioners might say the same. My visit with them was most enjoyable from my personal viewpoint, and I feel I came away having made the very valued friendship of some very fine people.

P.S.: About that three a.m. arrival home. We talked at the church until well after eleven, then Dottie and I stopped to eat. And WE talked. Well... you know how it is with women!

January Collects Ace Money

Maxwell Wins Classic As Venturi Posts 76

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Purdy Billy Maxwell, a tenacious little man on any golf course, ended a long victory drought Sunday when he captured the $50,000 Palm Springs Classic.

The 31-year-old Texan knocked out a 1-under-par 71 for a total score of 345 in this 90-hole desert marathon to haul down $5,300 top money and score his first triumph since the Memphis Open in 1958.

Maxwell, who won the U.S. Amateur championship in 1951 and at least one major PGA open a year from 1953 through 1958, resisted all pressures this sunny afternoon as some of his more feared rivals flew apart in all directions.

The biggest noise came on the 15th. It was there that Ken Venturi, who seemed headed for victory, banged two balls out of bounds and took an 8.

"That was the turning point—let's face it," Maxwell said later. When the excitement died down, young Doug Sanders, formerly of Miami, but now playing out of Ojai, Calif., was in second place. He made it with an eight-foot birdie putt on the crowd-packed 18th green at the Tamarisk Country Club. That gave him a 69 and a total of 347, worth $3,400.

And in third place, with a patented Palmer finish, was Arnold Palmer, who came from practically nowhere with a 69 for an overall score of 348. It earned last year's all-round champion $2,300.

But the tournament's biggest winner, after four days of tension and worry, was still Don January of Dallas. He shot a hole-in-one last Thursday and collected the $50,000 bonus offered for such a feat after no one else managed to duplicate his ace.

January said he is spitting the check with no one except Uncle Sam's income tax people.

The day was desert bright and warm as the 64 professionals started out on the 7,052-yard, par

36-72 Tamarisk course.

Leading the pack at the start of the round were Maxwell, Ken Venturi and former U.S. Open champion Billy Casper Jr. Bob Rosburg was one stroke behind and Palmer was tied for seventh.

After the first nine holes, the big picture still included the leaders, with Venturi one stroke ahead of Maxwell, two ahead of Casper and Rosburg and four in front of the handsome young Sanders.

Venturi Explodes
Early on the backside, Maxwell drew abreast of Venturi but Venturi got the stroke back and kept it until the 15th. Then he exploded. He hit two balls out of bounds and wound up with an eight on the 15th.

Venturi finished with a 76 and a total of 350, tied with Rosburg, who also had encountered trouble in the drive toward the finish.

Casper, similarly beset by misfortune, took a 75 and wound up at 349.

Al Mengert of Phoenix, Ariz., who had led the tournament through the second and third rounds, had a 75 for 352. He was tied for eighth with former U.S. Open champion Jack Fleck and Canada's Stan Leonard.

Scores
Billy Maxwell, 68-70-68-71	— 345, $5,300
Doug Sanders, 68-71-66-69	— 347, $3,400
Arnold Palmer, 69-68-70-72-69	— 348, $2,300
Billy Casper Jr., 68-69-68-75	— 349, $1,900
Ken Venturi, 65-71-67-71-76	— 350, $1,600
Bob Rosburg, 65-69-68-73-75	— 350, $1,600
Don Whitte, 66-70-73-72-70	— 351, $1,400
Jack Fleck, 70-71-73-67-71	— 352, $1,200
Stan Leonard, 71-69-71-69-72	— 352, $1,200

Skorich Has Tough Time Finding Help

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Nick Skorich, newly-named head coach of the world champion Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League, says he's having his problems finding a good line coach.

"Usually there are a flood of applications for any football vacancy," Skorich told newsmen Saturday at a banquet in Pittsburgh. "But I have had only a few for the Eagle job."

Skorich, one-time guard for the Pittsburgh Steelers, blamed the shortage of good pro assistants on the new American Football League.

New Loop Hurts
"There used to be an overflow of experienced men but they were grabbed off by the AFL," said Skorich. "I have to get an aide who knows personnel in the pro ranks. It would be suicide to try and go with a college coach in that spot."

Skorich said he had been seriously considering hiring Chuck Cherundolo, another former Steeler. But Cherundolo was recently signed as an assistant coach by the Steelers.

The Eagles named Skorich as head coach last month. He replaces Buck Shaw who retired after piloting Philadelphia to the NFL championship last season.

Souchak Hit Twice

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—There was no such thing as a double elimination golf tournament until Mike Souchak invented it at the Palm Springs Classic.

His formula was simple: He got thrown out twice.

On Wednesday, the first day of the tournament, Mike, of Berwick, Pa., was disqualified for affixing his signature to a fraudulent document. What happened was that Mike shot a 6 on the 18th hole but his scorer accidentally made it a 5 and Mike signed the card. This is known as failing to read the large print.

Losses Chance
Anyway, Mike was no longer eligible to compete for any part of the $15,000 purse put up for low individual scores among pros. But—and this is where it starts to get sticky—he was still eligible to compete for a share of the $15,000 offered to the low pro-amateur team.

But, on Friday, his amateur partner failed to finish one hole. One report is that a giant monster popped out of the hole and scared them away. The real reason is immaterial. At any rate, Mike was banished again—this time from the Pro-Am.

Honesdale Tops Blue Angels

HONESDALE—Honesdale handed Newfoundland the Blue Angels their fifth loss in six starts in the Mid Valley League Sunday, 99-92.

Tom O'Neill and John Diehl scored 32 points each for the winners.

Reed Gravel had 23 points and Bob Haag 20 for the Angels. Newfoundland led at halftime 46-40 but managed only 16 points in the third frame, while the winners poured in 24 and added 35 in the last period.

Zimmerman Wins Skiing Event

CANAZEI, Italy (AP)—Egon Zimmerman of Austria won the Three-Three international ski title Sunday by placing third in the final race, the giant slalom. The competition gets its name from the fact three major races are contested in three days.

Zimmerman won the downhill race Friday and was second in Saturday's special slalom.

Repeating A Tough Job

Pirates Will Have Same Line-up For Coming Year

By DANNY MURTAUGH
Pittsburgh Pirates
WOODLYN, Pa. (AP)—The Pirates expect to repeat as National League pennant winners this season. But I realize that the job isn't going to be easy.

For one thing, several of the other teams have strengthened themselves through trades. Others have some fine young material coming up from the minors. My big job will be to see that complacency doesn't set in, that happens to a pennant winner sometimes.

Unless something unexpected happens in spring training, we will have just about the same lineup as we did last year. Our biggest improvement is in the bullpen. At the beginning of last season, we could count only on Elroy Face to give us a good relief job. Then we picked up Clem Labine in August and now we have Bobby Shantz. I'd say that we were very fortunate in landing Shantz, who was so effective against us in the World Series.

Late Inning Works
My plans now call for Face and Shantz to work in the late innings of a game with Labine and Fred Green doing the relief work in case our starting pitcher is knocked out early.

Once again, we'll be counting on timely hitting and a good defense to pull us through. I don't believe many people realized how great a center fielder Bill Virdon was until they saw him make those terrific catches in the series. He'll be flanked by Bob Skinner in left field and Roberto Clemente in right.

Bill Mazeroski and Dick Groat give us one of the best second-short combinations in the league and it's also hard to beat Don Hoak as a glove man at third.

It'll probably be Dick Stuart and Rocky Nelson again at first base and Smokey Burgess and Hal Smith behind the plate.

With fellows like Vernon Law, Bob Friend and Harvey Haddix as starters and with a stronger bullpen, there probably won't be much chance for any of our rookie pitchers to win regular jobs.

Ramo Ahti Wins Skiing Crown

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP)—For the second straight year, Ramo Ahti, representing the Finnish Ski Club of Fitchburg, Mass., has won the Pennsylvania Cross Country ski championship.

Ahti copped his second title Saturday, speeding over the rugged Laurel Mountain course here in 45:30.

Misha Stahovich of Pittsburgh finished second in the event. Third-place honors went to Weijo Kokko, also of Fitchburg.

In other events, Ray Ellis of Somerset, Pa., won the men's invitational downhill race; Jim Reed of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, copped the boys' downhill crown; and Mary Jo Ikeler of Fox Chapel, near Pittsburgh, captured the girls' downhill title.

Fullmer Favored
Although he was fighting on Archer's home grounds, Fullmer was the 7-5 favorite.

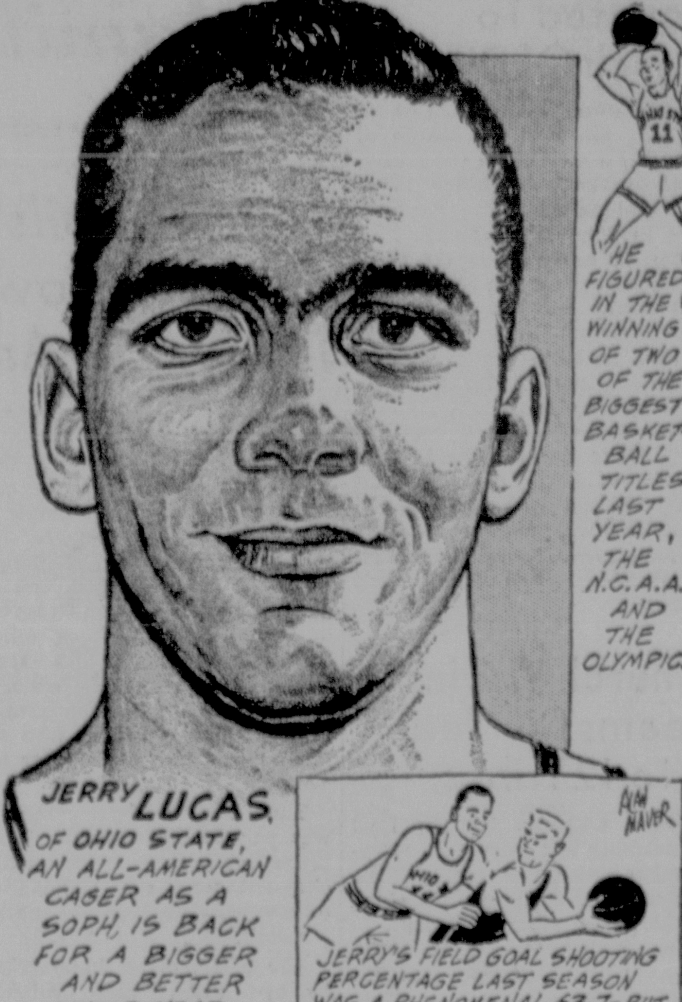

It was a fast fight most of the way. Archer cheered on by a partisan crowd of about 1,500, apparently caught the eyes of Referee Jimmy Devlin and Judge Frank Forbes with his jab at last range.

Devlin voted for Archer, 7-3 in rounds. Judge Frank Robes had it 8-2 in favor of Archer. Judge Leo Birnbaum called it a draw, giving each 5 rounds and 6 points. The Associated Press card had Fullmer in front, 6-4.

Warriors, Rams Battle Tonight

EAST STROUDSBURG State College is faced with three basketball games in five days, as a result of the weekend snow storm.

The Warriors are at home against West Chester tonight at 8:30. The game was originally scheduled Monday but reset when the snow storm hit.

Five high school basketball games and a wrestling match were also hit by the snow.

The Nazareth at Bangor basketball game, called off Friday and rescheduled Saturday, only to be postponed again, will be played Wednesday. Parkland at East Stroudsburg, called off Friday, is set for Feb. 22 and Pocono and Coolbaugh will make up their Friday date, Tuesday. Two other games, Barrett at Delaware Valley and Tobyhanna Twp. at Pleasant Valley, have not been rescheduled. And there has been no date set for the CCNY-ESSC wrestling match, snowed out Saturday.

Must Win Three
East Stroudsburg State could find itself in second place in the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania State College Conference, if it can win all three of its games this week. Wednesday night the Warriors are at Millersville, the number two team in the Eastern Division. Friday East Stroudsburg is at home against Shippensburg.

A loss in any of the three games, would all but eliminate the twice-beaten (league play) Warriors, who must over take unbeaten Mansfield.

West Chester and East Stroudsburg met only once last season, with the Warriors winning a 72-68 overtime decision at Normal Hill.

With only about three seconds left in regulation play, East Stroudsburg's Joe Habakus dropped in a jump shot to tie the score at 61-61. In the overtime frame Tony Salerno scored eight of the Warrior 11 points.

Buckeyes Win Easily

Duke, Cincinnati Newest Contenders For Hoop Title

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Put the weekend down as tough on basketball winning streaks, except for Ohio State and Duke and Cincinnati, two potential Buckeye challengers coming on like the winter wind.

While top-ranked Ohio State breezily led the advance of favorites with an 80-58 rout of Michigan for its 21st straight victory, five of the nation's gaudiest streaks were ditched—topped by fourth-ranked Duke's 81-77 snapper against fifth-ranked North Carolina. The Tar Heels had won 12 in a row.

Duke's triumph, led by sophomore Art Heyman's 36 points, sped the Blue Devils into sole possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference with an 8-0 record while averaging their only loss of the season in 17 starts—76-71 to North Carolina in the Dixie Classic final in December.

Seventh In Row
It was Duke's seventh in a row since the Tar Heel split, and surging Cincinnati boiled to its 11th straight and 16th in 19 tries, 77-60 over sixth-ranked Iowa at Chicago Stadium. But elsewhere the big streakers went tumbling:

Eighth-ranked Southern California, the Big Five conference lead, er with eight straight, lost to UCLA 86-83, despite a 37-point show by John Rudometkin. The Trojans had whipped the Uclans in the first of the two-game set Friday 78-63.

Florida, erstwhile coleader of the Southeastern Conference, with seven in a row, was routed 89-68 by mediocre Kentucky. Mississippi State, winning its eighth straight, took over the undisputed SEC lead at 6-0 by thumping LSU 77-61.

Dayton Romps
Memphis State (15-2), a prime tournament hopeful with six straight victories and 32 in a row at home, was walloped at Memphis by Dayton (12-6), 96-77.

And Army, with a nine-game burst representing its longest streak in 16 years, was knocked off 86-62 by Boston College.

Coupled with 10th-ranked Kansas State's 71-63 success over Oklahoma, and losses earlier in the week for third-ranked Bradley (to second-ranked St. Bonaventure and to Cincinnati), seventh-ranked Louisville, and ninth-ranked St. John's, it indicates another reshuffling of the nation's top ten is in order.

Ohio State remains clearly at the head of the list, however, after toying with the Wolverines at Michigan—hitting 66 per cent from the field in the first half and using its regulars only 30 minutes. John Havlicek, who hit nine-for-nine in the first half, and Mel Nowell each had 18 points. All-America Jerry Lucas second 17 points and grabbed 11 rebounds for the Bucks, who play tough Indiana (10-4) at Columbus Monday night.

Breaks Loose
Heyman, contained when North Carolina beat Duke in their earlier meeting, broke loose for 24 of his 36 points in the second half—including six in a row after the Tar Heels had grabbed a 73-70 lead. The game ended in a free-for-all among players and some spectators at Durham, touched off when North Carolina's Larry Brown collided with Heyman with nine seconds remaining. Police were needed to break it up. The loss dropped NCAA—ineligible North Carolina (7-1) to third place in the ACC behind Duke (8-0) and Wake Forest (9-1), a 78-69 winner over Maryland.

Bob Wiesenhan's 25 points led Cincinnati, which hasn't lost since dropping a 72-53 Missouri Valley Conference decision to lead Bradley on Dec. 23. Bradley now is 5-1 in the MVC, with Cincinnati percentage points behind at 6-2.

Sporting Events Find Out That It's "SNOW USE"

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a weekend of tough sledding for sports in the East, where the New York Rangers spent eight hours getting to Boston for a National Hockey League game and Bowie Race Track, after a moment of optimism, decided it was snow use.

Heavy snow, which hampered travel, also caused postponements in college basketball, track, fencing, swimming, soccer and minor league hockey. But a dog show went on in Boston, and snow-bound fans could find action on television—from college and pro basketball to boxing and golf

Close '840' Win Scored By Fetherman

KEN FETHERMAN of East Stroudsburg, scored a five-pin victory Sunday to gain the next to last semi-final position in the "840 Classic" bowling tournament.

Fetherman had a 527, to defeat Walt Keiper, of Stroudsburg, 527. Redge Flanagan, East Stroudsburg, 500 and Norman May, Mt. Pocono, 475.

Flanagan Leads
Flanagan led the match in the third game but missed two splits and had an open frame, to finish the game with 146.

The four bowlers faced 24 splits in the low scoring match, with May bowling eight splits.

Fetherman will meet Wally Straub, Clyde Ellenberger and the winner of next week's match in the last semi-final match, March 12. The first semi-final is scheduled Feb. 19, at Colonial Lanes.

2 Teams Seek Hockey Bids

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Baltimore and St. Louis hope to be operating American Hockey League franchises next year, a member of the circuit's board of governors says.

Word that the two cities have applied for franchises in the league came over the weekend from Lloyd Binco, general manager of the Hershey Bears, one of the league's current members.

The league is scheduled to be increased to eight clubs next fall with the return of the Pittsburgh Hornets. In addition to Pittsburgh and Hershey, other league cities are Springfield, Buffalo, Rochester, Cleveland, Providence and Quebec City.

7 Monroe Youths Face Induction

Record Harrisburg Record
HARRISBURG — State Selective Service Headquarters disclosed yesterday that seven Monroe County youths will be called for pre-induction physical examinations during February.

The board cautioned that while the physical exams are slated for this month, those passing may not be drafted for several months depending upon the number of youths called from the county to fill the draft quota, and the reserve that has been built up.

In Monroe County the seven youths represent an increase of two as compared with the January total of five called for physicals. Statewide the number of youths to be called for pre-induction physical examinations decreased from 2069 to 2041.

Local board 105, Stroudsburg, will supply all youths called for pre-induction physicals, examinations will be given on February 20.

Portland Lions Hear Bird Talk
PORTLAND — The Portland Lions Club met Thursday night at Otto's Grand View.

Bert Transue gave a talk on migratory habits of bald eagles and snow owls. He stated that there were a number of eagles and owls in this area. Both birds are protected by federal law and anyone killing them is liable to severe penalties.

The hurricane in Florida accounts for the eagles in this area because of damage done at their nesting places.

Transue asked if anybody observes eagles in the area to contact him so that he can notify the Audubon Society to aid in compiling a national census of eagles.

Chairman Olin Crumner announced that plans have been completed for the Father, Son and Daughter night to be held at Otto's March 2 at 6:30 p.m.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 16 at 6:30 p.m.

Little Chats On Public Notice

(No. 1 in a Series)
By James E. Pollard

SOMETIMES after a thing has been done, an interested party complains, "But they didn't tell me." It is his complaint is justified it may or may not be too late to remedy the matter. In effect, however, the trouble was that he was not given due notice.

In the truly democratic countries an important legal principle is involved in the fundamental right "to be put on notice." This is true for the individual, as well as for business and other interests and for the community at large. Only the dictator countries restrict or deny this basic right of the citizens to be put on notice.

The purpose of being put on notice is two-fold: (1) to inform the individual or others concerned as to some contemplated action that concerns their rights, and or (2) to enable them to take whatever steps they deem necessary to protect those rights.

As is pretty well known there are various ways of being put on notice. One is by personal service or direct notice. Another is by posting in a public place, and a third is by publication in a bona fide local newspaper of paid general circulation.

With the rapid growth of population and the complexity of modern living, personal service is not always feasible or is too costly where numbers of people are concerned. In such circumstances the bona fide newspaper is an effective medium. It is no accident that in thousands of situations, the law provides specifically for this method of giving notice.

South Wayne Students Set To Aid United Fund Drive

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Because we believe in the cause of charity, and because we feel that it is good training for children to be conscious of the principles of sharing with others, we are again conducting the United Fund Drive at Southern Wayne Joint School."

William Smith, student council president, announced yesterday for the council.

Noting that other causes are worthwhile, they do take a great deal of pupil and teacher time, the faculty has decided that one drive for funds will be conducted this year, with each dollar collected to be divided as follows: Easter Seals, 28.5 percent; Christmas Seals, 25.5 percent; March of Dimes, 29.5 percent; Junior Red Cross, 4.5 percent; Salvation Army, 12 percent.

Collected $301.54
The last time five separate drives were conducted, the total collected was $301.54. The student council is aiming toward a United Fund drive that will provide an equal amount for the five worthy causes.

The drive began on Thursday and will continue through February 14.

The project is aimed at developing ways to apply banking techniques on a sound financial basis and to attract outside, private capital.

Compensation For Tourists

MOSCOW (AP)—Tourists will be compensated for the revaluation of the ruble, which was changed Jan. 1 so foreigners got 9 rubles for the dollar instead of 10. V. M. Ankudinov, head of In-tourist, said in the magazine New Times that foreigners on tour in the Soviet Union this year will incur no additional expenses for transport. They will also be able to buy food at specially compensated prices, he said.

Flu Creeps Into London

LONDON (AP)—A killer wave of influenza crept remorselessly toward London yesterday after claiming 699 lives in a week—most in the north and midlands of the country. Thousands of Britons were laid low in the epidemic. Production was curtailed at many factories and offices.

The Health Ministry said the figure of 699 deaths for the week ending Jan. 28 compared with 358 in the corresponding week of 1960.

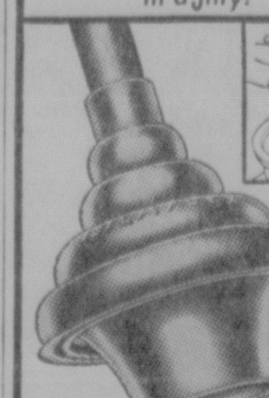

"But," said a spokesman, "the influenza remains relatively mild although very similar in type to the Asian flu which struck the whole country in 1957."

More than 1,000 influenza deaths a week were recorded in that period. Most victims of the latest epidemic were reported to be elderly. Londoners still were comparatively immune, with only seven deaths in the metropolitan area.

Foes Absent As Castro Purges About 120 Judges

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro began his announced house cleaning of dissidents yesterday by purging about 120 of Cuba's judges, without opposition. But reports conflicted sharply on the progress of his drive for a cleanup of military opposition to his regime.

By decree Castro ousted a Supreme Court justice, the presidents of six of this island nation's seven provincial courts of appeal, 26 appeal magistrates and 87 other judges.

Castro changed the jurists with counterrevolutionary attitudes or immoral conduct in a purge aimed at removing the last obstacles to rule by decree rather than by rule of law.

Powerless
The judges were powerless to oppose the sweeping purge, carried out under a Cabinet decree of last Dec. 20. This suspended for 45 days the law barring dismissal of court officers for arbitrary reasons.

The ousters were the second in a series aimed at taking over full control of the Cuban courts and integrating them into Castro's revolutionary program. Fifteen members of the Supreme Court were dismissed in January after a group of jurists defected, charging Castro's regime is going Communist.

Reports continued to filter into Havana from many sources that Castro's militiamen have suffered heavy casualties in their efforts to wipe out insurgent bands controlling the Escambray Mountains in central Cuba.

Informants in Cienfuegos said Castro himself has been appearing almost daily in that area, presumably in connection with the battle against the rebels. Inquiries to officials here bring the reply

Ships Arriving
LONDON (AP)—For the first time in history, ships are arriving and departing from the Port of Leningrad in the middle of the winter, Moscow radio said Friday. The broadcast explained this was due to two factors: The winter has been unusually mild thus far and the growing Soviet ice-breaker fleet is able to keep channels open in the Gulf of Finland and the Neva River.

Bangor Yellow Jackets Plan Serenade In Brass July 1

BANGOR — An invitational Serenade In Brass is planned by the Bangor Yellow Jackets, drum and bugle corps, at Memorial Park Stadium Saturday night, July 1.

The committee in charge, meeting for the first time at the American Legion Home, approved a policy that, by invitation, will bring to the area organizations not seen in previous serenades presented here.

As additional incentive, it also was decided to award as much prize money as possible this year.

This is expected to attract corps Robert George, Allen Fritz, Arthur Rico, Frank Stenlake, Jr., and Earl Randolph, other members, also attended.

The committee next convenes March 14, Sunday afternoon, July 2, is the rain date for the extravaganza.

New Type Doughnuts

HOTRETS — a completely new line of fry 'n' serve doughnuts — are making their national debut in North Carolina and in the local area simultaneously, according to Quality Bakers of America Co-operative Inc., the baking industry's largest association of independent wholesale bakers — Sunbeam brand.

The new product is being distributed in this area by Schable's Baking Co., Easton, bakers of Sunbeam brand.

Stanley A. Anderson, public relations manager of Quality Bakers, said "Hotrets" are the industry's answer to the growing demand for dunking doughnuts throughout the nation for a fry 'n' serve doughnut that can be prepared in a matter of seconds for consumption at the peak of delectability.

The new Hotrets are packaged in units of six. Because of the unusual sales potential of the new doughnuts, Quality Bakers of America have retained for the exclusive use of its members the Hotrets — fry 'n' ready serve identification.

Comprehensive advertising material has been created for launching the new Hotrets program in the local area by Schable's Bakery.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

For Monday, February 6, 1961

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Inviting day to add to your week. Responsive time for Military affairs, important government pronouncements. Discriminate between the urgent and important and the pointless.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Stabilize your present holdings and opportunities. Make the most of (without overestimating) offerings and propositions. You have profits in your own occupation or through efforts of others aiding you.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Make a position now not all satisfactory but YOU can turn mediocre offerings into really worthwhile ventures. Associate with people who worry, fretting, recognize your valuable God-given ability.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Still comfortable influences also yesterday's Sun aspect. Get things started with a planned schedule and keep to sensible, profitable rules and terms. Don't compromise with woe.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Enticing, teasing but not fully satisfying until you have made it become a lively, heartening period for your work and other interests. New and different matters should attract you.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A continuation of yesterday's nine Venus position. Take encouragement, strengthen your efforts, faith and determination. Do not be unduly yielding. We gain and learn by being elastic in attitude.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Good period for your talents and capability. Enthusiastic training sports, handling machinery, vehicles, military weapons, building ships, aircraft, etc. sponsored. Watch events!

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Restraint in spending, investing and in handling all money transactions urged. Can be a progressive, eventful day with intelligent direction and management. Don't evade direct questions.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — Be careful, conscientious, and have emotions under control. There are good opportunities about and you can improve in many ways. Also better the quality of your work or output.

January 24 to February 23 (Aquarius) — A productive day for travel for business; real estate, for inventions and investigations, for social service, experiments and the sciences. Be attentive to sound rules. February 24 to March 23 (Pisces) — Some favorable influences still linger since yesterday's Neptune aspect. Be enterprising, original, inventive. Keep appointments and don't over-promise in anything.

Mountain Chessmen Defeated

MOUNTAIN chess players, recognized as real contenders for the championship held by Harold N. James, didn't fare too well during the recent Stroudsburg Club session.

Jake Conley, heading the mountain group, drew William P. Deering for his opponent and Deering beat him two games out of three.

George Sopko also of the visitors, lost to Robert Hickey, Jr., three games to one.

In a champion-tuned match, James played James Heatherington of East Stroudsburg four games with each player taking two games.

John Rusk of East Stroudsburg absorbed three losses in a four-game set with Earl Weiss of Stroudsburg Southside. Rusk is a newcomer to the club.

Food Plan Near Completion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials are drafting procedures for President Kennedy's pilot food stamp plan. But it may be some time before details are spelled out.

Officials, however, did say yesterday that (1) the lists of those eligible to participate in the program will be prepared by local welfare officials and (2) the plan will not necessarily be restricted to families on regular relief rolls.

"The main thing agreed upon so far," one official said, "is that eligible people will be able to take the stamps to the retail grocery stores and get food for them. The hard details have not been worked out on such things as the color of the stamps and the denominations of the stamps."

It also has not been determined what commodities may be purchased with the stamps. The Section, however, will conform with the program's objectives: that families receive adequate diets and that surplus farm commodities be used.

The stamps most likely will be used to buy a wide range of food off the regular retail grocery shelves. These would include meat and various fresh foods.

The task force exploring the situation is expected to report to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman before the end of next week.

The pilot projects will be in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, southern Illinois, northern Minnesota and Detroit.

Seek Creation Of Federal Unit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors is going to urge creation of a federal Dept. of Rural and Suburban Affairs, an association official said Sunday.

H. A. Thomson, association secretary from Poole, said the action will be taken at the groups 39th annual convention which opens Monday in Pittsburgh.

The Pennsylvania League of Cities already has urged creation of a federal Dept. of Urban Affairs.

Thomson said, "We recognize the cities have problems. But we feel the problems of the suburban and rural areas are as great as the problems of the cities. Certainly we demand an equal representation and voice in Washington."

The convention runs through Thursday.

Fire Cuts Home In Bangor

BANGOR — The residence of Paul Krausopera, of Washington Twp., Bangor RD 2, was completely destroyed by fire late yesterday afternoon.

Bangor fire companies, endeavoring to get to the scene of the fire, were unable to break through the high drifts in the country roads.

Despite the use of several tractors by neighbors to break a path for the fire units, the drifts were of such magnitude that their vehicles became mired.

The home was formerly known as "101 Ranch" and was located a half mile over the hillside in the rear of Bush's Tavern, along Route 115.

No cause could be found for the fire except that Krausopera told firemen that the chimney just went pop.

He was the only resident of the home. Bangor firemen rigged a makeshift litter out of fire ladders and carried him to the main highway, a half mile away.

Krausopera was admitted to Gracedale. He is 78 years old. No injuries were reported except slight shock.

Dear Abby

Not Taking Any Chances

DEAR ABBY: Some friends of ours own a resort. The wife interviews all the applicants for jobs and does all the hiring and firing. If you saw that collection of maids and waitresses, you'd think it was an old ladies' home. A girl under 50 hasn't a chance to get hired there, and even a good-looking matron over 50 gets fired if she looks sideways at the husband.

It's true in his younger days this man was mixed up with some of the help and gave his wife a pretty bad time, but now that he's fat, bald and over 60, don't you think she should let the old goat run the business and quit worrying about him?

A FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: Your friend knows her husband better than you do. Just because there's chrome on the dome doesn't mean there's no power under the hood.

DEAR ABBY: When a boy kisses a girl, is the girl supposed to close her eyes and stop breathing?

NEEDS TO KNOW
DEAR NEEDS: She may close her eyes, but she isn't expected to stop breathing.

DEAR ABBY: I don't want to bother my clergyman with a problem like this, and don't tell me to talk it over with my mother because she is the one I'm having the trouble with. I am 16 and very mature for my age. I mean I could pass for 18. All my girl friends have started shaving their legs. Even the blondes. I am a brunette and my legs look like a bear's. My mother says if I start shaving my legs now, in no time at all they will be as rough as a man's beard. Don't suggest waxes or creams as they are too expensive. At what age should a girl start shaving her legs?

TALL, DARK HAIRY
DEAR T. D. AND H.: When a girl takes on the appearance of a woman, it's time to take off the hair. Especially if you are a brunette and your legs "look like a bear's." Once you start shaving your legs, you will have to continue, but the growth is rarely comparable to a man's.

Confidential to "All Mixed Up": You will find many people who will tell you what is good for you. Listen to them all—then do what you think is right.

Martin Calls For 'Positive' Approach To Roads Program

HARRISBURG (AP)—Park H. Martin, secretary of highways, called for a more "positive" approach to highway programs, one that is "for something rather than against programs and proposals."

"There does not exist in Pennsylvania an organization or group unselfishly interested in the department and its problems," he told the Pennsylvania Highway Material Producers Conference.

Martin said the only time he has seen some legislators, aside from his appearances before legislative committees, "have been when legislators appeared in my office to plead for special projects."

"The (legislative) committees have offered little guidance or support," he said.

Referring to the proposed two-cent-a-gallon gas tax increase, he said there is "no question" additional revenue is needed for the state's highway program.

Seen Ridiculous

Taking note of rising opposition to the gas tax hike, Martin said:

"Spearheaded by the petroleum industry, which perhaps will benefit to a great degree by better highways, opposition to a sound fiscal program reached ridiculous proportions when it accused the administration of launching a 'pork barrel' program to the rational development of an adequate highway system."

"There is no evidence that increased taxes on gasoline reduce consumption of gasoline."

He urged a statewide volunteer organization to support the overall Highway Department program, adding that a positive approach "would do much to mold a less cynical attitude in the minds of all our citizens about government and particularly about the Department of Highways."

Soviet Urges A New Road

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union challenges the new United States administration yesterday to follow "a new road" toward peace in the Congo.

But Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin, in issuing this challenge in the U.N. Security Council, maintained a harsh attack on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, and made clear the new approach must be based on previous Soviet demands.

Addressing his remarks directly to U.S. chief delegate, Adlai E. Stevenson, Zorin said: "We await an answer from the new representative of the United States whether he is ready to join us in following the new road."

No Rule For Speculatives

By William A. Doyle

Q. I bought some Canadian Javelin stock at $7 a share. I knew this was a speculative stock. At the time, the price seemed high for a speculation. But it had been as high as $12. Is there a rule of thumb by which a speculative stock can be identified? Is it by price?

A. You would need more than a thumb to come up with a "rule" for spotting a speculative stock. Figuratively speaking, a measuring tape, a scale and magnifying glass would be more helpful.

Although many people seem to think that only very low-priced stocks should be tabbed as "cats and dogs," the truth of the matter is that there are speculative stocks and high-quality "blue chips" in almost all price ranges. The thing to do is to measure the market price of a stock against its real worth, weigh its possibilities for the future and really look into it.

Not easy, you say? It's not as hard as you might think. You can get reports from brokerage houses and can get a good idea of the stature of almost any stock from the statistical manuals you'll find in most brokerage offices. Above all, investigate before you invest.

You do have Canadian Javelin pegged right. It will take a lot of doing by that outfit, which has iron ore properties in Canada and Labrador, to lift the stock out of the speculative class.

You might be thankful that you didn't pay more for it. The price of this stock has run as high as $30 a share in the past. It also dipped as low as $2.125.

Q. I bought 70 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph stock on June 9, 1960. I didn't get my first dividend until October. What happened to the dividend paid in July? Who got it?

A. The previous owner of the dividend, AT&T, like many other companies, pays dividends on its stock four times a year—"quarterly," as they say in the financial district.

In order to receive the dividend paid in July, you would have had to buy the stock on or before June 3. You bought this stock a bit too late to be eligible for that payment.

Q. Most of the advertisements for real estate syndication deals carry a line that the offering is limited to residents of only one state. What is the reason for this restriction?

A. It means that the offering has not been registered and cleared for sale in interstate commerce with the Securities and Exchange Commission and with various state regulatory agencies.

This can result simply from the fact that the organizers don't want to go to that time, trouble and expense.

But it can also be a red flag of warning. I'll repeat the admonition that you should investigate syndication deals very care-

Pocono Vacationland Association Reorganizes

BARRETT—The Pocono Vacationland Association held a re-organization meeting Wednesday night at Pine Knob. A reconsideration of membership rates provided a change for the future of the group. In lieu of a Chamber of Commerce, the association has set as its aim, the furthering of Barrett community interests.

A good turnout of representatives elected Donald Bliss president; Wright Gibson, vice-president; Marie Price, secretary and Elmer Daniels, treasurer. One of the first orders of business was the assignment of membership, publicity and advertising, and signs to Wright Gibson, Marie Price and Elmer Daniels, and Reeve Price.

To effect a liaison between the group and the Pocono Vacation Bureau, Donald Sommers was asked to speak for the Association.

Monthly meetings will be held on the first Wednesday of the month at Pine Knob beginning at 8:15 p.m. Feb. 15, a special meeting will be held, to prepare the reformed group for the upcoming resort season.

Inasmuch as the Pocono Vacationland Association provides a voice for the Barrett resorts, hotels and motels in addition to private enterprise, membership in the organization has been recommended.

Seaway Seen Taking Business

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway is taking some steel and grain business away from here, the Delaware River Port Authority says.

John H. Frazier, assistant director of the authority's port development department, said Saturday that the tonnage of steel has dropped from 2.8 million tons in 1959—the year the seaway opened—to 700,000 tons last year. Grain exports fell from 26.9 million bushels in 1958 to 22.7 million in 1959 and 20.4 million last year, he added.

He said the grain losses would have been greater if eastern railroads had not reduced shipping rates to help meet the competition.

He said the losses to the Seaway are "nothing like the local prophets of gloom or the seaway optimists predicted."
